. Jan 25, 2020 Monero can be used anonymously on the internet in a similar way to Bitcoin. The difference is that your identity is still identified because you are a user and not because of the use of the Bitcoin protocol. If you sign up for a Bitcoin account, the site will know who you are, because your password will be the same on the site as it was in your Bitcoin wallet. Unlike many other cryptocurrencies, Monero doesn't do a block chain of transactions; every transaction is complete and any two parties can check that the transaction actually happened. It works because every transaction is protected by a unique digital signature. A public and private key is used to encrypt the signature. It is impossible to create two that are the same and decipher them without knowing the private key of the person who created the signature. It also doesn't have a centralised bank with the ability to create money. There are no profit, loss, debts, interest rates, inflation or greed because like the physical world, everyone only cares about themselves. . Jan 26, 2020 There are many ways to make money on the internet, and it is not illegal to do so in most countries. For example, if you are an e-book seller or a website owner, you can sell your product. If you are a content creator, and you want to make money from your product, that would be considered advertising. If you are in retail, you can sell online. .
