What's new:

is the 35th episode of the Emmy-winning animated series, "Edna and Harvey". Its title refers to the two characters of the show. The two episode, ``Exit Hal Boogie" and ``Snow of the Big Summer," were animated by Clu Anselmo and Darick Robertson. Each episode ran for 47 minutes. This marks the last original full storyline done by Clu Anselmo before he left the show. His final scene in this episode is his office in the subway, where he calls his brother's machine and hangs up, then is heard to say "I hope this works." He then passes out from the accumulated stress of the three year tenure of this series, similar to the way Justice Daggett left Big ""Almond" at the end of Big Bang. Telly Savalas made a special cameo appearance as Edward Caprice. Clu Anselmo is mentioned in the Big Bang Big Finish, but his role in the show is never said. The final scene was in the Paramount Theater, where the interior is all presented as it was when the show was on the air, with Harvey and Edna presenting their award. This special episode is the second anniversary special (first was in 1994, again animated by Clu Anselmo). It is also the first episode to be exactly 3 years from its airing. This episode is set chronologically after the first episode. ==Production== Production for [[Edna&Harvey]] takes place at Westlake [[Hollywood Studios]] and the [[Pacific Film Archive]] Film Library. The PFA works for preservation and makes copies of American movies, usually titles that are not preserved. The archive also has other responsibilities.
