Legends of Dawn Reborn is a stand-alone game and can be played alone or alongside Legends of Dawn and any previous version. The scenario and characters are derived from LoD, so it's a reason to go back. You can choose to play from the original point of view or revisit your best friend and not only that: you can use legacy characters or even start again. In this new title you need the same amount of focus to complete the game, but now you can freely choose how you are going to play. Main Features: Keyboard and mouse and more control over your character and battle:- Optional auto-targeting and "systematic" aiming- Real physics in the game - huge amount of creatures, random encounters and attacks- Advanced melee combat mechanics - equipment impacts on attack and defense with its equipped gems- Special powers, items or combinations of the two- Skills for each special power and items impact on skills- Creations such as crafting (making enchanted swords, armor, rings, items, potions and others) or magic (infinite arrows, spells and charges)- Your own single storeroom of hundreds of items, potions, enchantments, scrolls, and over 300 types of items that you can craft or buy in shops- Hunting: move to a place, rest, light torch, count how many "points" you have and see how many animals you killed.- Indications of various skills such as perception, archery etc. Graphics and controls: Legends of Dawn Reborn has been designed to get you into the game and quickly learn where to go and do what. The visuals are very detailed, dynamic and fluid. It has been a goal to keep the graphics as simple as possible so that newcomers can also play without a tutorial or difficulty modes. At the same time, the controls have been given back to you. There are no extra buttons or more configuration needed. Feel comfortable and equipped with all the controls you need. The controls should be familiar, be intuitive and simply work, it has been done on purpose. Battle Mode: Combat in Legends of Dawn Reborn is similar to the combat from Legends of Dawn. The combat mechanics are now "interactive", which means that, depending on the damage dealt to your opponent, you can choose to use your character's special powers and improve your chances of winning the battle. If you deal a lot of damage you can also choose to interrupt your enemy, stealing his resources for yourself. Game "Legends of Dawn Reborn" Gameplay: Legends of Dawn

What's new in EndlessShinyBlues:

satellite data communications are widely used in environments (e.g., on the ocean, in space, in subterranean mines, and on other remote terrains) where high data rates are available, but robust and immediate connectivity to a support base is not possible. Of all satellite-based communications, the transmission of large quantities of data over relatively long distances is among the most expensive and least common. With the explosive evolution of the Internet, and the increasing use of real-time streaming video for both entertainment and business use, the demand for high bandwidth, low maintenance, and affordable satellite links has increased significantly. Current data rates in the maritime industry are generally less than 300 kbit/s, and the above-described bandwidths are more associated with wired communications. For example, fiber optics offer higher speed data rates of 16 million bits per second, or more, and while cable transmissions can carry data at Gigabits/s rates, the connections to remote end users are not always robust, e.g., via long copper cables. In addition to the economic disadvantages of wired communications, fiber optics and other types of wired communications are not practical for point-to-point communications. For example, it is not uncommon in maritime environments for vessels to pass one another at speeds of 12 knots, or more, and the use of radio communications for these applications would be completely unsatisfactory. While wireless communications may be relied upon in many instances, the costs for secure and reliable communications are prohibitive, and accurate navigation and positioning functions are typically unavailable when communications are lost. Acoustic communication is unlike many previous communications in having the potential of being a lower bandwidth (i.e., slower) link, with the promise of being very simple, secure, reliable, and inexpensive. Acoustic communications operate on the physical principle of sound: changes in pressure waves travel through the air or water medium at speeds which are limited by the velocity of sound. Changes in pressure waves are converted to variations in temperature waves when the pressure changes are converted into heat, and thence to movement of water molecules, or the sound waves themselves, from high pressure to lower pressure.

Different patterns of sound waves can be transmitted to produce encoded digital data. One common application of acoustic communication is the remote control of electrical devices. These applications take advantage of acoustic communication's "hands free" remote operation, as well as its ability to work in difficult, sealed environments. Another example of acoustic communication is the control of valves

System Requirements For EndlessShinyBlues:

* Windows Vista/Windows 7/Windows 8/Windows 10 * AMD Radeon HD 7850 or higher * Intel Core i3 or higher I understand that this is not a way to reach 0% on a new unlocked handheld. However, I believe that it can be done in the following way. Why? There is the theory that with my chosen methods, I can get myself to at least the following point.  $83\% = 26,900,000,000 - 3,010,000,000 = 23,900,000,000$
