A regular champion in the BMW 320ti Turbo in the British Touring Car Championship, White initially had a ten-year run with the BMW Group factory racing team, and is widely regarded as a title winning BMW driver. His success in BTCC began in 1987 when he won the European Touring Car Championship and at the end of 1988 became champion of the British Superturbo Championship after finishing runner-up to Stewart Lines for the previous two seasons. He then switched to the BMW 320ti Turbo for the 1989 season, winning the inaugural BTCC title in what proved to be the car's most successful season. He changed to the Alfa Romeo GTA for the 1991 season and won the championship once more, making him the first champion of four different cars. The GTA was named after the Alfa Romeo GTV and Alfa Romeo 2000 GTA that it replaced. British Touring Car Championship 1978-1987 White won races all over the UK, including the annual Brands Hatch Easter meeting, and also the Autosport "IPD" National Saloon title at Silverstone in 1979. By 1981 he was the British Saloon Champion, and he remained the champion until 1987. In 1984 White raced in the GT class in the European Touring Car Championship at Monza in the Fiat Barchetta. He won this race by 1.4 seconds. 1988-1991 White joined the BMW factory team for the 1988 season, and in both the Nurb
