DevExpress provides a product license, which helps to cover the cost of licensing. you will need to order a product license in order to use some DevExpress components, but not all of them. if you are not planning to use certain components, you can save yourself a significant amount of money by selecting the license option that covers only the components you need. a product can support a maximum of 30 concurrent users. after that point, your installation of the product will be curtailed.if you are using the device for multiple concurrent users, you may have more success if you configure the software using a single instance of the dll rather than having multiple instances.
