```
public function indexAction() {
    $categories = Category::getTree();
    $products = Product::createQueryBuilder('p')
        ->addSelect('p.codigo','p.descricao','c.id','c.categoria')
        ->where('p.categoria=c.id')
        ->getQuery()

Keyboard Macro is a program that can help you easily set keyboard shortcuts for your actions. User-friendly interface This software is lightweight and you will be able to control it from the desktop icon with a simple click. The application shows you every shortcut you are currently using, and you will also be able to add some of your own shortcuts as well. In order to use the app, you will need to pick one of the keyboard layouts supported by the utility. If you would like to add some shortcuts to the layout, simply drag-and-drop them from a list of predefined actions onto the layout. Your computer keyboard can be divided into four sections (left, right, up, and down), each of which can contain one or more buttons. The default layout of the program is configured in a way that puts the Alt keys on the left side of the keyboard, the Tab key on the right side, the Shift key at the top, and the Caps Lock key at the bottom. The number of keys you can place on each section can be adjusted, and the shape and spacing of the buttons can also be customized. You can also drag-and-drop any button from one section to another, and you can even lock or remove buttons from the keyboard. This way you can create keyboard layouts that contain exactly the keys you need.

Functions Keyboard Macro comes with a large list of functionality that can be used to control any action you are performing on your computer. For example, if you want to record a video, you can easily turn on the camera by pressing the Record button and you can use its Record function by pressing the Record button. The list of keyboard layouts supported by the software will be updated as soon as new features are added, and users will be able to create their own layouts and share them with other users.

Description of the Related Art In a typical dynamic random access memory (DRAM) structure, gate dielectric material is commonly formed over a conductive gate structure, a source region and a drain region. A trench is often formed in the semiconductor substrate and filled with gate dielectric material and a gate conductor. The trench is often referred to as a "trench fill gate". However, the typical method of depositing the gate dielectric material and gate conductor in the trench can be complicated and may result in a thicker layer of the gate dielectric material and the gate conductor in the trench. A thicker layer of the gate dielectric material and the gate conductor in the trench may negatively impact the device reliability. Therefore, there is a need for a semiconductor structure having a trench fill gate and a method for forming the same.Q: How to use 2D numpy array as mask array in scikit-learn I want
