On the other hand, in the process sequence for manufacturing semiconductor devices, a step of removing an oxide film, nitride film, or the like, formed on the surface of a substrate is included. At the removal step, a liquid process is employed by using a sulfuric acid-containing solution such as a solution obtained by diluting sulfuric acid, hydrogen peroxide solution, or the like. In this case, in the removal step, a film is etched by using an etching liquid not only for dissolving a substrate
